GOOD OFFICIALS!

This newspaper has frequently pointed with pride to Appomattox as a well-governed county. We are, therefore, pleased to note that many of the incumbent officials will have opposition in the August primary election. No citizen should be discouraged from seeking public office, but it is a tribute to the men who govern our county that no opposition has been offered to their re-election. We congratulate our county officials and know that our record of sound administration will continue.

WITH OTHER ED TORS

THE SCHOOL TEACHER

(Pittsylvania Tribune)

Last September thousands of men and women, most of them with the very best intentions set out to help parents of this country make of their children intelligent, happy and useful citizens.

When some of us pass a farm we think of how it could be improved and made more productive. Others of us see a business and think at once of how it could be expanded and enlarged and made to better serve the community profitably, both for the owners and for the customers. When a good teacher see a child student, he thinks of how that child can be trained and developed into the happiest and most useful citizen that he is capable of growing into. Can you conceive of any work more important than this or one more difficult?

Each child in school is an individual and has to be given individual attention for his best development and yet the teacher is conscious of the fact that all of the children in school are due to get equal attention and service. This makes the work of a teacher tremendously more difficult because children are so different in their capacities and in their dispositions.

The school term is over now and the teachers are thinking over the year's work—pleased with some, disappointed with other parts of it. They will appreciate a note from you thanking them for the care and consideration given your children. Write them today.

ARMED TO THE TEETH

(Exchange)

The world is an armed camp. The nations have not laid down their arms since the fighting ended two years ago. Nearly all have compulsory military training. Most, including some of the poorest, are spending a far greater part of their budget than they can afford on military establishments—up to 80 per cent in famine-ravaged China. Ground armies alone have 19,000,400 men in uniform.

The two great powers, from a military standpoint, are the United States and Russia. America rules the waves, with 57 per cent of the world's tonnage to Britain's 23 per cent. Russia is a distant third, with less than seven per cent.

Russia has the most powerful ground army, with 3,800,000 men, according to best available figures. Britain, traditionally a sea power, is next, with 1,210,000. Impoverished India follows with 1,000,000. The United States and Yugoslavia have approximately 675,000 each in their ground forces. France, traditionally the strongest power on land, has an army of 430,000 and a navy with only three per cent of the world's total tonnage.

It may surprise many persons to learn that the world's largest ground forces belong not to Russia but to China, which has 5,750,000 men under arms. But the Chinese forces, ill-fed, ill-clothed and ill-armed are not formidable to more modern powers.

With the United States predominant at sea and Russia on land, the two nations are more evenly matched in the air. The United States has 37,000 planes to Russia's 25,000, though in quality, range and striking power this country's edge is greater than the figures suggest.

There is an appalling quantity of machinery for killing in the world today. Military machines are costing the nations at least $10,000,000,000 more a year than theydid in 1938, the world is an armed camp.

CHOICE IS MOTORISTS

(Winchester Star)

The generally accepted statement that the horseless carriage is here to stay was paraphrased and expanded on recently by Clifford J. Fletcher, New York state commissioner of motor vehicles, "so, in addition to car dealers of Southwestern New York at Jamestown, he said:

"The automobile has become an indispensable accountrement of our lives and we must therefore learn to live with it."

And then he added a jarring note in deer'ings:

"The only question remains, and that is whether we are willing to continue to pay a frightful price in blood for its benefits."

The answer of course is that people want the auto but they don't want to pay a frightful price in blood for its advantages. They want the roads made safer for driving.

Pointing out that roads are below par because of wartime neglect and that thousands of miles of road in New York state alone must be reconstructed to eliminate accident hazards from that source, he added that only improved driving habits can cut the highway fatality and injury toll.

It's possible of course for people to drive carefully over any kind of road. The driver can regulate the speed to suit conditions. In fact, that's what the driver is for.

Unless someone can find a vast deal of money for road-building and can translate the money into improved highways immediately, motorists owners have no recourse other than to improve their driving methods. It's a choice of greater caution or of injury or even death.

Meat Prospects Reported Best Since 1941 for Civilians

COLUMBUS, OHIO.—An adequate supply of juicy steaks and savory beef roasts appears in sight for the remainder of 1947, an Ohio State university farm marketing specialist said.

The specialist, C. W. Hammans, declared also that ample supplies of veal were on hand.

This points to a backlog of 150 pounds of meat per person for United States civilians during the year, the highest since 1941, despite smaller amounts of mutton and pork.

Two postwar factors contributed to the encouraging meat picture, Hammans said.

First, meat exports are expected to drop considerably below the 1946 figure of 1,450,000,000 pounds.

Second, government purchases of meat for the armed forces will slump off to 500,000,000 pounds against the high mark of 4,200,000,000 pounds in 1944.

Housewives cannot expect to find well-stocked coolers of pork at the markets, Hammans explained, until September 1, when the pig born in the spring of 1947 starts to market.

The 1947 pig crop already has been marketed and the fall crop was slimmer than usual.

Farmers anxious to get best prices for their livestock were advised to watch the barometer of pay rolls in industry.

"Working men, receiving good wages, are the best customers for meat," Hammans explained. "The strong demand for all kinds of meat will continue as long as city workers get fat pay envelopes."

Young Lady Thanks Police For Tagging Her Aged Father

CLEVELAND. — Capt. Augustus Foley, assistant traffic chief, is still glowing from the letter that was not a gripe.

Doris Noble wrote the police, enclosing the one dollar fine her 74-year-old father, Fred, had received for jaywalking, and thanking them for their alertness in tagging him.

"I trust that should he ever do it again," Miss Noble wrote, "there will be another alert officer on the job. He worries me sick taking such chances.

"I believe people who do not themselves operate a car are most reckless in creating hazards for those who do."

JUDAH'S APPROACHING DOOM

LESSON TEXT—Jeremiah 36:2, 3, 29-31; II Kings 23:14.

MEMORY SELECTION—The fear of the Lord prolongeth days: but the years of the wicked shall be shortened.—Proverbs 10:27.

The decline of a nation from strength and glory to weakness and shame is always a sad thing to contemplate. Still worse is the evident cause of such decay in the sinfulness of the people and their stubborn rejection of God's mercy and grace.

The religious reforms in Judah under Josiah were only temporary in their effect on the people; partly because of their own insincerity, partly because Josiah was soon killed in battle. Yet God did not leave his wandering people without good counsel, for it was in those days that the great prophet Jeremiah ministered. He had been the helper of Josiah in his good purposes; now he continued to plead with Judah to submit themselves to God and to his will.

His efforts proved to be fruitless as far as Judah was concerned, for we see that

I. Judah Would Not Respond to God's Mercy (Jer. 36:2, 3).

God commanded his prophet to write down his words in order that the people might not only know the inevitable impending judgment, but especially be reminded of God's desire that they should turn from their evil ways and be forgiven.

One would have thought that they would have responded to such mercy with an immediate and grateful return to the Lord, but they did not.

Jeremiah, a unique man of great ability, was so tenderhearted that he has often been called the weeping prophet. Do not infer that he was a weak, emotional character, for he was strong in the Lord, and courageous in the face of rejection and persecution. He urged upon Judah the necessity of submitting to Babylon, to whom God had given power, and above all to the Lord, for a spiritual cleansing and revival.

Our second section brings before us the further sin of King Jehoiakim, who led his nation on to destruction. We see that

II. Judah Would Not Receive God's Word (Jer. 36:23-31).

At God's command Jeremiah and his scribe Baruch had prepared the scroll with God's Word upon it. One of the nation's leaders was moved by it, and through his urging the scroll was brought to the attention of the king.

Jehoiakim, sitting before the fire, heard only part of it, and then in defiance of God he took a penknife and cut it up and burned it.

One cannot help but think of those in our day who call themselves modern thinkers, or liberals, who have also used their knives upon God's Word. They cut out of the Bible everything they do not like, and offer the hungry people the stone of their own philosophies in place of the Bread of life. Think what their judgment will be!

God's Word is not so easily gotten out of the way! The prophet was commanded to rewrite the scroll, and in it to declare the awful judgment of God upon the one who mutilated his Word.

To try to destroy God's truth by fire and violence is as fruitless as to try to tear the stars from the heavens or to keep the sun from shining. The wicked leaders of a great nation have tried that once more in recent years, and they now lie dead for their sins, with the nation a subject people, broken and all but destroyed.

One wonders why those who profess to serve the Lord will engage in such activity, even as one wonders at Judah, a favored people of God, refusing to receive his Word.

God is not willing to give up, and now tries chastisement. But we see that

III. Judah Would Not Recognize God's Providences (II Kings 24: 1-4).

Jehoiakim had become the vassal of Babylon, but after three years he decided to try to throw off the yoke of his oppressor, Nebuchadnezzar. He was not able at the time to deal with the situation, and so he incited marauding bands from various other nations to harass Judah.

We see, however, that this came about at the commandment of God (vv. 2, 3). Evidently he was now using the distressing experiences of life to turn Judah back to him; but once again it proved to be in vain.

God does deal with men through what we call his providences, and these may include not only his mercies, but his chastisement. Trouble and sorrow may be God's means of leading us to the place of repentance and blessing.

What folly it is to disregard the hand of God in our daily lives, or to become embittered at the circumstances which are intended to bring us to God's place of blessing. Happy is the man or woman who, being reproved in this way, profits by the Lord's admonition (Heb. 12: 11).

TYPICALLY TEEN

Only a teen-ager could have started these strange customs; only this column with its 2,000 teen-age Hi-Style Scouts could have discovered them. We pass them on to you for what they're worth. You can pay us in bubble gum.

Campaign Coat—At last you've found a real use for your fan mail-coats. Instead of littering them with Jive and Nonsense, you're using them as campaign signs in school elections. In one city, the teens carried on a raincoat campaign for the right to vote at 18. What's your platform?

Ridig Rules—In an effort to stamp out Snooping, one group of teen-agers has started a "N. K." society. When their dates plead for their Private Minutes Mere, they simply tell them they're members of the "N. K." club. The Wolves beat a hasty, if disappointed retreat, because they know that "N. K." stands for "No Kissing."

Cafe Society at Home—The newest fad is a "Cafe Society" party, complete with formal invitations, formal dresses and Night Club Finis's. Clear out your rumpus room or living room; arrange lights, using night club fashion, around the dance floor, have a floor show of local talent, and get one of the local Shutter Bugs (Camera fiend, to you), to circulate around taking flash pictures. More fun than a night at the Stork club—and so much cheaper.

ODD DITTIES

We find rhymes like these in all your high school papers, who said that teens have no poetry in their souls?

I'm a little acorn.
I fell out of a tree;
Along came a Big man,
And he stepped on me.

Diddle-um; Diddle-dee—
(I'm cracked!)

Hey diddle, diddle,
The cat and the fiddle,
The cow jumped over the moon so high;
Along came a plane and cut her in twain,
And that's why we have Ole Buttermilk Sky.

New Life Table To Alter Costs

Increased Life Expectancy Reflected in Revised Payment Schedule.

NEW YORK. — On January 1, 1948, life insurance companies will abandon a mortality table they have used since 1868. They are replacing it with a new table that bears a more reasonable relationship to the current mortality rate.

Under the old table, children reaching one year of age had a life expectancy of 48.94 years. The new rate increases this to 63.76 years.

For people reaching 20, the old table gave them 42.20 additional years. The new table gives them 46.54 more years.

According to the old table, 92 out of every 1,000 policyholders died at the age of 40. According to the new listing only 62 die.

The new table, known as the 1941 commissioners standard ordinary table of mortality, reflects the actual life and death experience of policyholders of almost all life insurance companies between 1930 and 1940.

As a result of amendments to state laws, it will go into effect in about 35 states January 1, replacing the 79-year-old experience table now in effect.

The new table gives life insurance companies a new basis for calculating values. The Institute of Life Insurance describes it as a new pattern of cost.

New Cost Pattern.

The new pattern applies only to policies issued on or after January 1, 1948.

Those already in force will continue on their present basis.

"This is a more equitable distribution of cost than we've ever had," the institute said. "In the lower age levels, where mortality is low, net cost to policyholders will be a little lower than it is now. In some age levels, where mortality increases, it will be a little higher. But the over-all cost is about the same."

The following figures, obtained from a major New York life insurance company, illustrate the point:

A man takes out a $1,000 participating life insurance policy at the age of 25. At the end of two years, the net cost at present to him would be $26.74. Net cost for the same policy under the new system at the end of two years would be $19.77.

Basis for Figuring.

According to insurance men, adoption of the new mortality table accomplishes three things:

It provides a better basis for calculating reserves and non-forfeiture benefits of policyholders, and balances more closely the amount paid as premiums with what their beneficiaries will receive as benefits.

It establishes a direct basis for determining non-forfeiture benefits to which policyholders are entitled when they turn in their policies. The cash surrender value after 10 years of a participating $1,000 insurance policy, issued at age 25, is now $93.26. The same policy, under the new system, would pay $143.58.

Many companies after January 1 will decrease the rate of interest guaranteed in new life insurance policies. Since 1930, the rate earned on invested funds has dropped from 4½ per cent to 3 per cent. A decreased interest rate, however, has no affect on premiums. Cost of insurance is regulated by the actual mortality experience of the company issuing the policy.

Puppy Hiding in a Handbag Rides Plane From Germany

NEW YORK.—A dubious distinction—that of being the first aerial stowaway to arrive at the airport—attached itself at La Guardia field to one Blanka, a year-old female Pekinese puppy.

Blanka's voyage from Germany, notwithstanding the rigid airlines rule against transportation of dogs, became known after the landing of a Pan American Frankfort-to-New York plane. Mrs. Adolphus J. Tuxbury of New Orleans stepped from the plane with other passengers and then opened her handbag. Blanka popped out. The little Peke was able to ride undiscovered and in apparent comfort throughout the long trip.

Mrs. Tudbury said she had been living in Munich with her husband, an army officer, and had decided to return — with Blanka — when her husband was transferred to another post at Hannau.

PERPLEXING POSSESSIVES

Today's article will, I hope, help to clarify a matter of punctuation. There seems to be a good deal of confusion among magazines, newspapers and such agencies as to the correct way of writing the possessive forms of common and proper nouns which end in "s" or "ss."

Recently I have noticed these awkward froms: "The boss' office; Gus' bride; Bess' new dress; John L. Lewis' statement; Congress' action."

Such possessives are not too disturbing in print; but if you read them aloud they sound very odd. For example, in "the boss' office" the apostrophe after "boss" is neither a letter nor a syllable; hence it cannot be pronounced. So we must read it aloud thus: "The boss office."

To say, "This is the boss office; she is Gus bride; I like Bess new dress; here is John L. Lewis statement; he referred to congress action" certainly would result in a strange, non-English-sounding gabble. Moreover, it would be a violation of the traditional way of saying such possessive nouns.

There is no rule that nouns ending in "s," "ss," or "x" form the possessive by adding the apostrophe only. On the other hand, good texts state that common and proper nouns ending in "s" or an "s" sound form the possessive by adding 's, thus: Jones's, Davis's, Dickens's, etc. (See "Possessive," page 1927, Webster's New International; College Handbook of Composition, by Woolley and Scott; A Working Grammar, by James C. Fernald.)

Here is the safe and the correct way to form such possessives: Follow the form that is customary and natural in speech: Bess's, Gus's, Boss's, Lewis's, congress's, etc.

Exceptions. These are the accepted forms: Jesus', Moses'. The reason is that an additional "s" syllable on the names would have an unpleasant and repetitive sound, thus: "JEE-zuss-es, MO-zuss-es."

We find, then, that whether to add apostrophe-s or the apostrophe only is strictly a matter of euphony.

Yugoslavs to Get Potatoes From United States Soon

WASHINGTON. — The United States has decided to try to make available an undetermined quantity of surplus potatoes to meet part of Yugoslavia's immediate food needs, the state department announced.

Ambassador Sava Kosanovic announced for 50,000 tons of potatoes and 250,000 tons of grain in the next four months.

In its announcement, the state department reiterated that Yugoslavia can expect no grain from the United States before May or June and then only upon assurances that it would be distributed "efficiently and without discrimination."

Official British sources said Yugoslavia has asked Britain for 800,000 worth of food and other materials. They indicated Britain would refuse.)

Flavor and Value of Milk Can Be Retained

In recent months small unit pasteurizers have been placed on the market. Tests conducted by state experiment stations and research organizations have proven that the taste, quality and value of milk pasteurized by these units is not diminished—but on the other hand the health factors are greatly increased. There is a serious milk-borne disease danger of using raw milk. This may be entirely eliminated. With many cities, counties and districts demanding pasteurization of milk to be sold, the small units will prove of value to owners of a small number of cows who desire to retail their excess milk supply. They will retain way to avoid disease from milk is to heat it sufficiently to kill all disease-producing bacteria—this can only be done properly by pasteurization. Boiling will kill bacteria.

All of us would like to put dad on a pedestal on Father's Day to show him how we feel about him the year round. I like to think of all American fathers in the role of Minute Men, standing guard over the security of their families. Certainly they could do no better than to assure the happiness of themselves and their homes than by buying United States Savings Bonds regularly.

Two automatic bond buying plans are available now. If dad is on a payroll, the Payroll Savings Plan will assure him days of ease when he gets ready to retire. If dad is a professional man or self-employed, he can use his checking account to buy a bond a month.

NEWCASTLE DISEASE

Winchester, June 11.- Since Newcastle disease is apparently on the increase in Virginia, a group of poultrymen from counties surrounding Winchester made this relatively new disease the subject of thorough discussion when they met inquarterly conference here May 27 at the invitation of I. Fred Sine, secretary and county agent.

Several flocks of chickens in the Valley area have been reported as having Newcastle disease. An outbreak on the Eastern Shore has given the broiler industry there much cause for concern. And recently there have been reports of other appearances of the disease in Eastern Virginia.

Dr. F. E. Mullen, pathologist,of Harrisonburg diagnostic laboratory; M. E. Coe, assistant poultry husbandman, Virginia Agricultural Extension Service; and others attending expressed the opinion that strict attention to sanitary measures is the best means of combatting the disease.

Infected live birds, authorities believe, are the best means of spreading the trouble. Special caution is given against moving suspected birds except in a private carrier, and then only to take them to a laboratory for diagnosis.

Only clean new boxes should be used for transporting chicks, and crates and other vehicles used for transporting live poultry should be cleaned and disinfected after each use. Possible infection through egg crates, feed bags, and clothing should also be avoided.

Newcastle disease if of the virus type. Infected birds become droopy, have a nasal discharge, a rattling sound in the throat and a course chirp, and breathe rapidly.Nervous symptoms show up as weakness, lameness, and twisting of the head and neck.

HOMEMAKER'S NOTE

Warm weather may cause some people to start cutting down on their breakfast intake, and meal-planners are advised by Mrs. B.G. Anderson, home agent, to give a little more attention to making the first meal of the day as attractive as possible.

It is sound health planning, Mrs. Anderson says, to eat one-fourth to one-third of the day's food at breakfast. That's the best time to serve the vitamin C-rich foods, such as strawberries, cantaloupe, citrus fruit or tomato juice. Cereals, bread and fats are mainstays for energy. Cereals also provide protein, and whole-grain and enriched varieties have added values in B vitamins and minerals. Milk gives calcium and other nutrients. Eggs, lean meats and fish mean additional protein for body building and repair.

From a budget point of view, too, breakfast is an important meal, If you skip the morning meal, reminds the home agent, you must get the daily nutrients required for good health at lunch and dinner. And the foods generally served at those other meals are usually more expensive.
